Where Boys Learn to Farm and to Be Soldiers

Unusual Experiment of a Manufacturer—Based on the Theory That Agriculture Can Be Made Fascinating to City Youths if Properly Taught

This was the story told on a farm as a boy. The work he did was part of his education. From his contact with nature, he learned about planting, cultivating, and harvesting. He was taught the skills of farming and how to manage a successful business. He was taught that a good education is a must.

With these lessons, the boy would then be prepared for his future in the world. He would be able to take care of himself and others.

In the city, the boy would then be able to take care of himself and others. He would be able to take care of himself and others.

Later on, the boy would be able to take care of himself and others. He would be able to take care of himself and others.